Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 6-14, drawn to an isolated nucleic acid, classified in class 536, subclass 23.5.
 - II. Claims 15 and 16, drawn to an antibody composition, classified in class 530, subclass 387.1.
 - III. Claims 17 and 18, drawn to a method for determining the degree of inflammation comprising detection of a specific antibody: CD97 α subunit complex, classified in class 436, subclass 536.
 - IV. Claims 19-21, drawn to a method for identifying a compound comprising changes in a CD97 α subunit determined by immunoassay or nucleic acid assay, classified in class 435, subclass 7.1.

2. The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions these two different products are made by materially distinct processes and comprise different molecules.

Inventions III and IV are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions these two different methods differ in method steps and reagents used. Furthermore, Group III involves the use of any number of biological samples, whereas Group IV involves the use of one of several T-cell mitogens. These reagents are not shared between the two groups.

Inventions II and III and IV are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the antibody composition can be used in either method group of Inventions III and IV, which are different processes yielding different endpoints.

3. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

4. A telephone call was made to Kenneth A. Weber on March 4, 2003 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
